THE DEPUTY CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS (AIR WARFARE)
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20350

Stan
Dear ~~Admiral~~ Turner,

19 APR 1980

It is the custom in the local Naval Aviation Community to hold quarterly luncheons for all active duty Naval Aviators and Naval Flight Officers stationed in the Washington, D.C. area. These occasions afford an opportunity for professional discourse in a relaxed and congenial atmosphere, as well as an opportunity for our Naval Aviators to have the benefit of a luncheon address by a high ranking military or civilian leader.

In keeping with our intent to make these gatherings as professionally meaningful as possible, I would like to extend an invitation to you to be our guest speaker for the summer luncheon. We have reserved facilities at the Fort Myer Officers' Club on June 4th between the hours of 1130 and 1330. The speaker at our previous luncheon held in January was Senator Barry Goldwater.

Although I am fully aware that during your brilliant career in the Navy you wore the crossed sabres pin instead of wings, I also am fully aware of your interest and enthusiastic support of naval aviation during that time. This background, coupled with your tremendously demanding current position at the top of our civilian leadership in our nation today will provide those of us who wear wings, both young and old, with a unique opportunity to hear your views and perceptions from a position that only a very select few are ever fortunate enough to reach.

I know that your time is terribly valuable and limited, Stan, but if you think you could break away for the two hours on that day, you would truly have an enthusiastic audience to listen to anything you want to discuss. You would honor us with your presence. I hope you can work it in.

Very respectfully,

W. L. McDONALD
Vice Admiral, U. S. Navy

Admiral Stansfield Turner, USN (Ret.)
Director, Central Intelligence Agency
